HELPLESS COMRADES SEE BRAUTIGAM DIE

Wictim Shouted Wildly for Aid and Then Disappeared GOVERNORSHIP IS Under Water.

FELL FROM LITTLE ROW BOAT

Brautigam, Moving His Seat, Swanson's Appointment as Sena-Staggered From Illness and Topples Over.

Gathright followed.

They were about fifty yards out from shore when one of the boys decided to row back and relieve his comrade. Brautigam got up from his seat to exchange seats with Claus. He staggered against Claus, and both fell into the water. Claus managed to reach the boat before golmg down, freeing himself from the drowning clasp of the other, who had caught hold of his foot in an eight to save himself.

He screamed for help three times, but Claus and his younger comrades were all too frightened to afford him assistance, and he drowned before their eyes.

The boys returned to shore in the boat and got the dead boy's coat, hat and shoes and returned to Richmond, rowing all the way.

Sister Hearthroken.

They carried the sorrowful news to the home of W. H. Dunnington, where young Brautigam and his younger sister lived. Miss Brautigam collapsed on hearing of her brother's death, and Dr. Dougherty Hinchman was called in to attend her. She was selzed with several fits of violent weeping, and the physician had to give her a quieting dose to soothe her nerves. In the hope of being able to find the body, several young men—William and Samuel Daniels, Walter Deckman, Henry Childress, William Tobeck, Louis Brautigam, the dead boy's brother, and R. H. Morris—went down the river and dragged it until after darkness settled down. But the body who were unable to tell the exact location where he sank, and though they dragged for several hours, they were unable to touch the body.

Expect Body to Rise.

It may rise sooner than usual with drowned bodies, on account of the hot weather and electrical disturbances in the atmosphere. The search will be resumed this morning.

None of the party was able yesterday to give a clear account of how the sectled and frightened, and their statements varied considerably. But there exists no doubt at the minds of the family that the drowning was accidental.

vited the congregation to join with him in singing the hymns. The organ led and the singing was hearty, notwer that and the absence of the quartet.

In many other churches the engagements of the paid choirs expired July 1, and volunteer singers replaced the quartets at yesterday's services. Tennessee are former State heads. The Southern Senators who are ex-Governors are: Johnston, of Alabama; Clarke and Jeffries Davis, of Arkansas; Stradley, of Kentucky: Foster, of Louisiana; Smith, of Maryland; Stone, of Missouri; Tillman, of South Carolina; Frazier and Taylor, of Tennessee, and Culberson, of Texas."

POLITICAL RALLY

Congressionnt Aspirats May Address
Lee Ward Club.
A political rally will be held under the auspices of the Northside Social and Democratic Club of Lee Ward at Fraternity Hall, 215 West Broad Street, on Wednesday night. Attorney-General Samuel W. Williams, Colonel John
S. Harwood and E. C. Folkes have accepted invitations to speak. Congressman John Lamb and his opponent, Judge T. Ashby Wickham, have been invited, and are expected to make addresses.

There will be a matinee and night performance of "Niobe" at the Academy of Music to-day by the favoritie Benjamin Players. In choesing this celebrated comedy for Fourth of July week, Manager Benjamin bas selected an admirable hot weather bill. The plece is of a frothly, afry type that goes well in the good old summer time, and the company, who have proved themselves excellent in farce, may be relied upon to ket a great deal of funny dialogue. Mr. Blunkall will have a part admirably suited to his droll personalty as Peter Amos Dunn, who insures a statige only to have it come to life, and Miss McComas should give a good performance of the title role, This week will mark the reappearance with the stock company of Robert Cain, one of the favorites of the stock organization which Mr. Benjamin conducted at the Academy last summer.

Dr. McDaniel Wants Christians to Pray That To-Day's Sun Will Sound Death Knell of Brutal Sport-Plain Talk on Richmond Conditions.

Holland Myrida M

"Some people have said that customs are changing—and let it go at that. In these changes lies the great danger that I am warning this city about. Richmond is beginning a new epoch. Now this is a real city, and the annexation of Manchester has made us that more than formerly. With more growth there are bound to come the cyils that are incidental to large cities."

ovils that are incidental to large cities."

Defends Pienie,
After Dr. McDaniel had paid his respects to the moving picture shows in his first sermon on conditions here, some one sent him a sheet of paper on which were pasted side by side an advertisement of a moving picture show and of the First Baptist Church's Sunday school picnic last week, with this comment; "Take your choice." "I take the picnic," declared Dr. McDaniel. "It gives free tickets to the Sunday school scholars and the poor. And there's no money in it."

"It is said that my sermons may hurt Richmond," he went on. "I never asked for their publication, and I disclaim any responsibility in that direction. At their request, I furnished synopses of these sermons to the newspapers.
